HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 53
SIXTY-NINTH CONGRESS

SUBMITTED BY MR BURTON

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That H. Con. Res 43, adopted on February 6, 1925, providing for the printing of a revised edition of the Biographical Congressional Directory up to and including the Sixty-eighth Congress, be, and is hereby, rescinded, and that in lieu thereof there shall be compiled, printed with illustrations, and bound, as may be directed by the Joint Committee on Printing, a revised edition of the Biographical Directory of the American Congress up to and including the Sixty-ninth Congress (1774-1927); and that six thousand five hundred additional copies shall be printed, of which four thousand four hundred copies shall be for the use of the House of Representatives, one thousand six hundred copies for the use of the Senate, and five hundred copies for the use of the Joint Committee on Printing.

Adopted, March 3, 1927

NOTE.—Pursuant to the resolution (H. Con. Res. 43, 66th Cong.), the revised edition of the Biographical Congressional Directory would have been printed as a House Document (H. Doc. No. 600, 66-2), but on March 3, 1927, another resolution (H. Con. Res. 53, 69th Cong.), was passed, which provided that the publication should be brought up to and including the Sixty-ninth Congress. Therefore the revised edition of the Biographical Congressional Directory, 1774-1926 (H. Doc. No. 600-66-2), will not be published in the series of House documents of that Congress.

This volume, compiled by Ansel Wold, Clerk of the Committee, is a revision of the Dictionary of the United States Congress and the General Government, published in 1859 and again revised in 1869, by Charles Lanman, the Biographical Annals of the Civil Government of the United States in 1876, by Charles Lanman and James Anglin, and the Lanman edition of 1876 as corrected by Joseph M. Morrison in 1887; the Political Register and Congressional Directory of 1878, by Ben: Perley Poore, the Biographical Congressional Directory of 1903, by O. M. Enyart, and the Biographical Congressional Directory in 1911.

Where matter herein is found to be in disagreement with that contained in the foregoing publications it is because later research has brought to light additional facts to controvert such records or has demonstrated the existence of errors in previous directories

Anyone discovering errors in this edition is invited to call them to the attention of the Joint Committee on Printing for reference in compiling future publications. To those sufficiently interested in furnishing additional information which would add to the value of future editions the Committee will be especially indebted.

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "J. M. Morrison". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of the first and last names being capitalized and prominent.

FOREWORD

Prior to 1809 apparently no effort was made to publish a directory relative to Members of Congress. The earliest known directory is entitled "Places of Abode of the Members of Both Houses of Congress, First Session of the Eleventh Congress." It is a pamphlet of 15 pages, published by R. C. Weightman in 1809, and contains the names and locations of boarding houses, arranged alphabetically, which are followed by names of Senators and Representatives residing therein. Directories, containing added congressional information, compiled and printed under contract by private firms, appeared from time to time. Though still printed by contract, the Congressional Directory for the first session of the Thirtieth Congress, issued in 1848 by J. & G. S. Gideon, assumed an official air by bearing on the title-page the words "Compiled and published for the use of Congress by the Postmaster of the House of Representatives." Similar information was carried on titles up to and including the first session of the Thirty-eighth Congress.

At the beginning of the second session of the Thirty-eighth Congress a joint resolution, approved February 14, 1865, was unanimously adopted, providing for the compilation and publication of the first Congressional Directory under the supervision of the Joint Committee on Public Printing. The committee held numerous sessions, obtained and examined like publications issued in foreign countries, and finally decided upon a work similar in essentials to "The House of Commons," published in London since 1852.

Biographical sketches of Senators and Representatives appeared in 1867 in the first edition of the Congressional Directory for the second session of the Fortieth Congress. In the compiler's note it is called a "proof edition," and has approximately 235 biographies of Senators, Representatives, and Territorial Delegates. It is referred to as being incomplete, and in 1868 was replaced by a second edition which contained a few more sketches. The directory for the third session, printed in 1869, contains approximately 280 biographies.

The work of preparing and publishing a biographical directory to include all the preceding Congresses was first undertaken by Charles Lanman in 1859. It bears the imposing title "Dictionary of the United States Congress." There have been at least six subsequent editions, which were intended to give up-to-date and authentic biographical data. Since Mr. Lanman's last volume, however, the succeeding compilers appear to have done little more than to add such information as could be obtained from the Congressional Directories published during each session of Congress. It seems that no effort to correct, revise, or perfect the work of former compilers was ever attempted, and thus original errors were perpetuated.

In this edition, which contains about 9,000 biographical sketches, the compiler, under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing, has conscientiously endeavored to verify the personnel and biographical data published in preceding editions.

With the aid of a trained corps of investigators, the journals and records of debates have been searched, biographical publications consulted, and special appeals made to Government depositories, public libraries, historical associations, postmasters, State, county, and municipal officers, as well as to private individuals, for specific and general information.

Acknowledgment is here made to all those who have assisted in this work. The unfailing courtesy of the postmasters throughout the country is deserving of special mention. When appealed to they have invariably responded by furnishing the desired information, or by forwarding each communication to some person most likely to possess it. Special acknowledgment is made to officials of the State Department for their courteous cooperation in the examination and verification from official documents of service records of the executive officers of the various administrations, to the officials of the Library of Congress, who placed at my disposal historical data that could not have been otherwise obtained; and to officials of the Government Printing Office, who have endeavored in every way possible to produce a book of such mechanical excellence as to be in keeping with the dignity and importance of the subject matter contained therein. There are many instances in which librarians, historians, and biographers have spent valuable time in research and in preparation of desired information, and the assistance rendered by them in this work is also gratefully acknowledged.

The cooperation of readers is solicited to the end that future Biographical Directories may eventually contain a full and accurate record, thus making available a book of authoritative historical value. Errors of commission or omission that may be called to the attention of the Joint Committee on Printing will be filed for use in subsequent editions. All material collected will be placed in the files of the committee at the Capitol for the benefit and information of future generations.

The compiler has aimed to be impartial and keep within the bounds and scope outlined by the first Joint Committee on Printing directed to undertake the task. It is unfortunate that some records which might prove of great value, especially bearing upon earlier contested-election cases and their determination, were destroyed. It is also regrettable that the journals of the two Houses, and the certificates of election as well, can not be accepted as reliable in the spelling of names. They do not afford much accurate information as to resignations and deaths of Members, and none whatsoever as to their home addresses.

Beginning with the Fortieth Congress the names of Representatives from the various States are placed in the numerical order of the congressional districts they represented, and the names of Representatives at Large appear in the order of their seniority. It will thus be easy, by referring to the footnote references of deaths, resignations, etc., to ascertain the particular congressional district a Member represented. The names of all Senators are given in the order of seniority, the name of the Senator with the longest service appearing in the left-hand column and that of the junior Senator in the right-hand column.

Although using every effort to secure the utmost accuracy the compiler can not flatter himself that he has escaped errors or avoided important omissions. It has, however, been his earnest purpose to produce as nearly as possible a perfect work.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

A Cabinet officer is not appointed for a fixed term and does not necessarily go out of office with the President who appointed him, and, while it is customary to tender his resignation at the time a change of administration takes place, he remains formally at the head of his department until a successor is appointed. Subordinates acting temporarily as heads of departments are not considered Cabinet officers, and in the earlier period of the Nation's history not all Cabinet officers were heads of executive departments. The order of departmental precedence now observed was not followed prior to the passage of the act of January 19, 1886, establishing the line of presidential succession. The names of all those exercising the duties and bearing the responsibilities of the executive departments, together with the period of service, are incorporated in the data that follows. The Department of State, through the courtesy of Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, the Secretary of State, has verified and corrected the data from official records and documents on file in the department.

The dates immediately following the names of executive officers are those upon which commissions were issued, unless otherwise specifically noted. Where periods of time are indicated by dates as, for instance, March 4, 1793–March 3, 1797, both such dates are included as portions of the time period.

TIME AND PLACE OF MEETING

The Constitution (Art. I, sec. 4) provided that "The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year * * * on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." Pursuant to a resolution of the Continental Congress the first session of the First Congress convened March 4, 1789. Up to and including May 20, 1820, eighteen acts were passed providing for the meeting of Congress on other days in the year. Since that year Congress has met regularly on the first Monday in December. The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York City, subsequently, including the first session of the Sixth Congress Philadelphia was the meeting place, since then Congress has convened in Washington, D. C.

<sup>1</sup> Neither a quorum of the Senate nor of the House of Representatives appeared in their respective chambers on Wednesday, March 4, 1789. But eight Senators appeared and the minority adjourned from day to day until Monday, April 6, when a quorum of the Senate was first present. Thirteen Members of the House of Representatives appeared on March 4 and a quorum was not present until April 6, when the body proceeded to the transaction of business. When both Houses were organized, on April 6, they met in joint convention, in the hall of the Senate, and proceeded to open and count the electoral vote for President and Vice-President. John Adams, the Vice President elect, appeared in the Senate Chamber and assumed the duties of the chair on Tuesday, April 21, 1789. On May 15, 1789, the Senate determined by lot the classes into which the membership should be divided agreeably to paragraph 2, section 3, of Article 1 of the Constitution, as follows:

Class 1, term expires March 3, 1791—Messrs. Carroll, Dalton, Ellsworth, Flamer, Maclay, Read, and Grayson.

Class 2, term expires March 3, 1793—Messrs. Bassett, Butler, Few, Lee, Strong, Paterson, and Wingate.

Class 3, term expires March 3, 1795—Messrs. Gunn, Henry, Johnson, Izard, Langdon, and Morris.

<sup>1</sup> Resigned in October, 1797.<sup>2</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William Bradford, and took his seat November 22, 1797.<sup>3</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Representative-elect Benjamin Bourn, in the preceding Congress, resigned in 1797.<sup>4</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Elisha R. Potter, and took his seat November 13, 1797.<sup>5</sup> Resigned December 31, 1798.<sup>6</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of John Hunter, and took his seat February 16, 1799.<sup>7</sup> Resigned July 10, 1797, having been appointed minister plenipotentiary to Portugal.<sup>8</sup> Many biographical errors have resulted from the fact that Smith of Charleston district and Smith of Pinckney district both formerly were known as "William Smith." It was about this time that Smith of Charleston district changed his name to "William Loughton Smith."<sup>9</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of William L. Smith, and took his seat November 23, 1797.<sup>10</sup> Expelled for "high misdemeanor" July 8, 1797.<sup>11</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by expulsion of William Blount, and took his seat November 22, 1797, for the term ending March 3, 1799. (See also note 14.)<sup>12</sup> Appointed to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797 (the legislature having failed to elect his successor), and took his seat May 15, 1797.<sup>13</sup> Elected to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, and took his seat November 22, 1797, resigned in April, 1798.<sup>14</sup> Appointed to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, caused by the resignation of Andrew Jackson, and took his seat December 6, 1798, vacancy in this class from April, 1798, to October 5, 1798. Joseph Anderson was elected December 12, 1798, to fill vacancy in the term beginning March 4, 1797, caused by resignation of Andrew Jackson, but did not present his credentials under this election until the Sixth Congress, continuing to serve in the other class, and on December 31, 1798, obtained leave of absence for Daniel Smith for the remainder of the session, technically, the term of Smith expired on the election of Anderson.<sup>15</sup> Took his seat November 23, 1797.<sup>16</sup> Resigned October 17, 1797, having been elected governor.<sup>17</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Isaac Tichenor, and took his seat November 22, 1797.

<sup>1</sup> Admitted as a State into the Union March 15, 1820. Previous to March 3, 1820, Maine was a part of Massachusetts, and was called the "District of Maine" and its Representatives were numbered with those of Massachusetts; by compact between the two States, Maine became a separate and independent State, and by act of Congress of March 3, 1820, was admitted into the Union as such—the admission to date from the 15th of the same month.

<sup>3</sup> Took his seat November 13, 1820, term to expire, as determined by lot, March 3, 1821.

<sup>4</sup> The act of Congress approved April 7, 1820, provided "That in the election of Representatives in the Seventeenth Congress, the State of Massachusetts shall be entitled to choose 13 Representatives only; and the State of Maine shall be entitled to choose 7 Representatives, * * *. That if the seat of any of the Representatives in the present Congress [Sixteenth], who were elected in and under the authority of the State of Massachusetts, and who are now inhabitants of the State of Maine, shall be vacated by death, resignation, or otherwise, such vacancy shall be supplied by a successor, who shall, at the time of his election, be an inhabitant of the State of Maine."

<sup>1</sup> A remonstrance against the legality of his election was considered by a select committee of five Senators; it revealed that, as chairman of the joint convention of the general assembly of New Jersey, Mr. Bateman had voted for himself for Senator, had broken a tie vote thereby, and upon such state of facts the certificate had been issued to him; May 22, 1828, the committee reported, that, in its opinion, he had only exercised a legal right by thus voting, and, upon its request, was discharged; resigned January 12, 1829.

<sup>3</sup> A protest of certain members of the legislature was presented, in the preceding Congress, against the legality of the election of both Mr. Fitch and Mr. Bright, setting out "they were not elected by the legislature, but by a convention of a portion of the members thereof, not authorized by State law, legislative resolution, or constitutional provision", both the Senators were seated upon their credentials, and the credentials and protest were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, the committee reported, May 24, 1858, that the sitting Senators were entitled to their seats, and this report was agreed to June 12, 1858. On January 24, 1859, a memorial of the State of Indiana was presented representing that it was the wish of the State that Henry S. Lane and William M. McCarty be admitted to seats as the only legally-chosen senators, February 4, 1859, the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the memorial, reported there was no vacancy in the Senate from the State of Indiana, and that the election of Messrs. Lane and McCarty was void, the Senate agreed to this report February 14, 1859.

voluntarily emancipated and enfranchised her slaves, she had added to her representative population a sufficient number to give her nine, instead of eight, Representatives, and he had been elected as such ninth Member. It was the first of many similar claims made by other readmitted States, the majority report was adverse to the claimant and, although the House took no formal action, he was not seated.

<sup>2</sup> May 11, 1872, the Committee on Privileges and Elections was authorized to investigate charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the election of both the sitting Senators, June 3, 1872, it reported that in the case of Mr. Pomeroy such charges were totally unsubstantiated, in the case of Mr. Caldwell the report was directly to the contrary, and on February 17, 1873, it reported a resolution declaring him "not duly and legally elected", this report was not acted upon during the Congress, but early in the succeeding Congress, during the special session of the Senate, while the report was pending and under discussion, Mr. Caldwell resigned (March 24, 1873)

<sup>5</sup> Resigned November 1, 1872, on January 22, 1873, credentials of John Ray and William L. McMillen, each claiming to have been elected to fill the vacancy, were presented and referred, February 20, 1873, the committee reported that neither of the claimants was entitled to a seat, as no State government existed at the time in Louisiana, and recommended the passage of a bill ordering a new election, such a bill was rejected February 27, 1873, no further action was taken on the credentials and the seat remained vacant to the close of the Congress

<sup>1</sup> Joseph C. Abbott was a claimant for this seat; the Committee on Privileges and Elections reported February 28, 1872, that Zebulon B. Vance had received "a majority of the whole number of votes cast in each house," and Mr. Abbott received the next highest number of votes, the next day Mr. Vance was declared duly elected. Mr. Abbott rested his claim on what he assumed to be the legal result of the conceded ineligibility of Mr. Vance, who was barred by the provisions of the fourteenth amendment. Mr. Vance made no claim to the seat; on February 5, 1872, credentials of Mr. Ransom were presented, certifying he had been elected January 30, 1872, "to fill a vacancy existing by reason of the resignation of Zebulon B. Vance". April 23, 1872, Senate declared, by resolution, that Mr. Abbott had not been elected, and the day following that Mr. Ransom was declared entitled to the seat, took his seat April 24, 1872, resolutions were subsequently adopted allowing mileage and salary to Mr. Abbott from March 4, 1871, to April 23, 1872, and fixing Mr. Ransom's term and pay as beginning March 4, 1871.

<sup>2</sup> Elected to fill vacancy caused by death of Edward Y. Parsons, and took his seat August 12, 1876.

<sup>3</sup> Elected on January 12, 1876, for the term beginning March 4, 1873, but as his rights were not finally determined until December 10, 1877, the seat remained vacant throughout the Congress. The contests of Pinckney B. S. Pinchback and William L. McMillen were continued from the preceding Congress, but on December 14, 1873, McMillen was permitted to withdraw his credentials, and on March 8, 1876, the Senate adopted a resolution that Pinchback "be not admitted to a seat."

<sup>1</sup> This seat was claimed by Henry M. Spofford, March 5, 1877 (in the special session of the Senate). Mr. Kellogg presented himself to be sworn, but objection was made and his credentials were ordered to lie on the table. October 17, 1877, the credentials of Mr. Spofford were presented, and they, with the credentials of Mr. Kellogg, were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. November 20, 1877, the committee reported in favor of Mr. Kellogg; the report was adopted November 30, 1877, took his seat the same day. In the succeeding Congress the case was reopened upon petition of Mr. Spofford and a report was made in his favor, but he died August 20, 1880, before action was taken.

<sup>2</sup> In the preceding Congress the Committee on Privileges and Elections twice reported that Pinckney B. S. Pinchback was entitled to the seat upon credentials presented from two elections, the committee, after these decisions, was instructed to pass upon credentials of James B. Eustis and held that, inasmuch as Mr. Pinchback had a clear title, there was no vacancy, the Senate refused to adopt the report of the committee and declared Mr. Pinchback "not entitled to the seat" by a vote of 22 to 29. March 9, 1877 (in the special session of the Senate), the credentials of

Mr. Eustis were taken from the files and again referred, the committee reported December 1, 1877, holding that the Senate's action in the case of Mr. Pinchback was a final adjudication, and a resolution declaring Mr. Eustis entitled to his seat, his term of service to date from January 12, 1876, this report and resolution were adopted December 10, 1877, and Mr. Eustis appeared, qualified, and took his seat the same day.

<sup>1</sup> Elected May 19, 1887, and took his seat December 5, 1887. Jesse J. Finley was appointed by the governor on February 28, 1887, to fill the vacancy existing after March 4, 1887, until the next meeting of the legislature, but never qualified. Upon the request of the financial clerk of the Senate for an opinion as to his authority to pay Mr. Finley the salary due him as a Senator-designate, President pro tempore

Ingalls held that it should not be done, as the appointment "was in anticipation of a vacancy, and not to fill a vacancy that existed, as contemplated by article 3 of the Constitution", subsequently the Senate adopted a resolution to pay Mr. Finley for services rendered from March 4 to May 19, 1887.

<sup>1</sup> The Legislature of West Virginia had met and adjourned without electing a Senator for the term beginning March 4, 1887, on March 5, 1887, the governor appointed Daniel B. Lucas to fill such vacancy, on the same day he issued a proclamation calling the legislature in extraordinary session for eight specific purposes, the election of Senator not being named as one of them, the legislature proceeded to choose a Senator, and Charles J. Faulkner was elected, credentials of both Mr. Lucas and Mr. Faulkner were presented on December 5, 1887, and Mr. Faulkner appeared to be sworn, but objection was made and he was not permitted to qualify, December 14, 1887, the senate adopted a report from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom all papers were referred on the 12th, declaring Mr. Faulkner duly elected and entitled to the seat, appeared, qualified, and took his seat the same day.

<sup>2</sup> Elected on January 18, 1887, to fill vacancy caused by death of Representative-elect William T. Price, in preceding Congress, but on account of illness did not take his seat until January 4, 1888.
